"I am afraid, madam," said a gentleman who was looking for country lodgings, "that the house is too near the station to be pleasant." "It is a little noisy," assented the landlady, "but from the front veranda one has such a fine view of people who miss the train."

Meddling With the Fog.

"I was riding around in London with a friend one day," said an American tourist, "and the talk turned on the heavy fog that had covered the city like a blanket the night before. I finally expressed the conviction that, after a few experiments, I could find a way to prevent the fogs, and my words were overheard by cabby. An hour later, when my friend had left me, the driver said:

"Did I understand you to say, sir, that you 'ad a way to hobviate these 'ere fogs what come down on London?" "Yes, I said something to that effect," I replied.

"But I 'opes you won't do it, sir. I 'opes you won't."

"But I should think it would be a great thing for your line of business. These fogs must lose you quite a little sum in the course of the year."

"So they does, sir; but hunderstand my brother-in-law is a stockholder in a gas company, and where I loses a shilling he gains a guinea. It is for him to keep hup the style and the barstocracy of the fambly, and I 'opes you won't reduce him from haffiance to poverty by meddling with no London fog—I 'opes you won't."—M. Quad.

The Luck of the Vulgar.

When one looks round at the jovial, happy, healthy faces of vulgar men, when one reads of the vast sums they leave at their decease, one is astonished that the art of vulgarity is not taught in schools. If one has not inherited a certain proficiency from one's parents, one has to pick it up oneself. The solution of the great problems of life, how to be healthy, how to procure the privileges of the wealthy and a reputation for happiness and wisdom, is to be vulgar.—Frank Richardson in London Mail.

"How many more boards are we to have? Now it is the bureau of pensions that is to be paid when we have so often declared ourselves too poor to furnish the aged heroes with more than a bit of bacon and a sup of hominy," declares the Times-Union.

No bill has passed nor is one pending to create such board, except in the sense that a Board of Pensions has always existed—

Composed of the Governor, State Treasurer and Comptroller.

That's all—nothing extra for the people to pay.

Why does the Times-Union make such false and malicious statements?

Because—

Its railway ownership has trained the Times-Union—

To the work of trying to poison the public mind.

For—

The Times-Union is owned by the Atlantic Coast Line, the Florida East Coast and the Seaboard Air Line Railway Companies.

The Times-Union is NOT a newspaper—it is a chatter.

And the Chattel of a Republican who contributed $2,000 to elect a Republican Governor of New York.

GOVERNOR, GET YOUR FOUNTAIN PEN.

That self-perpetuating Oligarchy known as the Board of Bond Trustees of the city of Jacksonville is tottering on its throne. One little stab from the Governor is all that is needed to destroy this nine-headed creature that has been all-powerful in the metropolis of the state for many years, and the Governor need not exert any of his superannuous physical force to give it, nor use marin-spike nor sheath-knife.

All he has to do is to get a firm grasp on his fountain pen and annex his name to the bill that passed both houses Monday.

They are all good men who compose the Board of Bond Trustees, but they are business men, not patriots, and I know of no more despotic government than a government of business men.

The rule of the Bond Trustees has been against all the principles that should prevail in a government by the people.

The pleasing fiction has been current for some time—that is since 1st Stockton got his charter amendment through in 1903—that the City Council elects the Bond Trustees. But the fact is, nevertheless, that the Bond Trustees elect themselves, because they hold the nominating power for a number of city officers, and the intimation of their desire came with as much force as a word of command when the time rolled around for one of these despots to seek re-election.

Each Councilman who cherished a desire to see one of his friends hold an office of honor and profit in the city of Jacksonville knew whom HE HAD TO VOTE FOR when Trustee-electing time came around—knew better than to oppose the will of the Bond Trustees in the little matter of their own succession.

In a business sense the government of Jacksonville has been excellently administered. Improvements have been made under the sway of the despotic board that have placed Jacksonville foremost among Southern cities. Miles of pavement have been laid, hundreds of miles of electric wire have been stretched, and the water and sewer pipes have reached every part of the city.

But the people HAVE NOT BEEN CONTENT, even with all of these advantages, for the same reason that the French grew restive under the iron rule of the Corsican, even though he made Paris and France the wonder of the world as far as public works could make it.

The PRINCIPLE OF LIBERTY is dearer to the hear of the people than civic pride.

Deck a slave with jewels and fine linen as you will, and he still pants for the rags that covered his nakedness when freedom was his.

Jacksonville has had the improvements, but THE PEOPLE HAVE PAID THE PRICE.

Taxes have been high and the penalties placed upon property owners have in many cases afflicted them sorely and grievously.

That the people of Jacksonville have not been content to live under a despotism has been evidenced EVERY TIME they have been PERMITTED THE OPPORTUNITY to vote upon this question.

At an election held at which the issue was squarely made as to whether the Bond Trustees and the City Attorney should be elected by the people or not, a majority declared for the privilege of electing their own rulers.

This bill, passed through the Senate by Mr. Buckman

OUR GUARANTEE

An attractive feature of purchasing your whiskies from the R. M. Rose Company is the fact that they are distillers and can absolutely guarantee quality and purity. We know just how our whiskey is distilled, just what kind of grain is used, where the water comes from, and how carefully every drop is aged.

We do not have to take some salesman's word on these important matters—we are certain the whiskey is right, and do not hesitate to guarantee it in every particular.

We will ship, express prepaid, on Adams or Southern Express lines Four Full Quarts Rose's "Old Rye" or Rose's "Old Corn" or assort the shipment as you like, for $3.50.
